FROM THE PRESIDENT

Of the many interesting programs that took place on the IUP campus during the 1984-85 academic year, few stimulated more thought and discussion than the "IUP in the Year 2000" Symposium. The purpose of this symposium was to familiarize ourselves with the economic, demographic, and education trends that will have impact on the university in the years ahead, in order to begin to plan realistically for the program IUP will need to offer students in the future.

Dr. Charles W. Ryan, dean of the College of Education, chaired the Symposium Planning Committee, which did an excellent job of identifying knowledgeable and provocative speakers to help set the scene. The committee brought to campus Marvin Cetron, founder and president of Forecasting International and author of a dozen books. He has been identified as one of the nation's foremost forecasters. Joining Dr. Cetron were Carol A. Christensen, a consulting futurist and president of Christensen Associates, a futures research firm that offers services in organizational learning and strategic planning, and Harold L. Hodgkinson, senior fellow in the Institute for Educational Leadership in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Cetron made the opening address to a large audience in Fisher Auditorium. Speaking in a rapid-fire style of delivery, he deplored America's current education system and recommended immediate action for improvement, including a twenty percent across-the-board raise for teachers and a forty percent increase for teachers of math, science, chemistry, and vocational education. "In forty out of fifty states," Dr. Cetron said, "the starting salary of a garbage collector is more than that of a teacher!" Attributing the U.S. ranking of seventeenth out of twenty industrial countries in education for ten of the last twenty years to the low pay scale for teachers, Cetron called for stricter standards for would-be teachers, and a minimum 3.2 grade average by the sophomore year.

Dr. Cetron stressed the need for parents and schools to teach children how to use computers, because "without [such knowledge] they're not going to make it in the future--period." He also advocated strengthening vocational education, pointing out that we are not training the people we need to serve as computer technicians, emergency technicians, cat-scan readers, geriatric technicians, etc.

Dr. Cetron also predicted that fast-moving changes in office technology will cut the number of secretaries and typists required in 1990 by one-third and the work week will shrink to 32 hours. By 2000, he said, seventy-five percent of both spouses will be working full-time and a twenty-hour work week will be made possible by robots. He predicts robotics will cause sweeping changes in American manufacturing, farming, and office operations in the next decade. While the average robot cost $150,000 in 1980, the cost was $102,000 in 1982 and $35,000 this year. By 1990 the cost of a robot will be just $1,000. Dr. Cetron claimed that a car built by a robot is nine times better than a "Wednesday car" (thought to be the best production day), and he predicted cars will have a life of twenty-two years by the year 2000!

In an equally fast-paced talk, but with a very different message, Carol Christensen challenged assumptions about the future and suggested alternative futures. Higher education, she said, should not only reflect the culture, it should lead the culture. She sees the need for colleges and universities to help society and the individual to make changes, to acknowledge uncertainties, and to restore the significance of feelings and values. She urged us to help answer such hard questions as "Can society afford what medical technology has invented?" and said we must make education truly responsive to the way people live their lives. The curriculum, Dr. Christensen believes, should be organized around themes and key issues to make it more relevant to contemporary life.

Finally, Dr. Hodgkinson presented a series of hard facts for our consideration. He told us that there are currently 30,000 people in the United States over 100 years old; 2.2 million over age 85; 6.6 million households in which the woman earns more than her spouse; 5,606 black elected officials in the United States today and 3,128 Hispanic elected officials; just eighteen percent of the world's population is white; as of 1983 there were more people over sixty-five than there were teenagers in this country (which partly accounts for the four percent decrease in violent crime); and every day, forty teenager mothers in the U.S. give birth to their third child. These statistics tell us a lot about major changes taking place in our society, about the students we are going to need to reach, and about the kind of world our graduates will inhabit.

I believe this first phase of the "IUP in the Year 2000" Symposium succeeded in setting the stage for our consideration of long-range plans for IUP. Phase II of the symposium gave IUP faculty, administrators, and students an opportunity to focus directly on IUP and its historical strengths and weaknesses and to begin to think about the future in terms of what the symposium taught us: there are dramatic changes ahead in our student population; career opportunities and types will change drastically; boundaries between countries will blur and we must prepare our students for a global society; we must challenge assumptions about how people learn; the impact of technology will continue to be intense; and the development of robotics will continue to have an impact on our lives.

We know that we must begin to address these issues quickly, yet deliberately, and to plan realistically for the future. I believe the next few years will require each of us to put the university ahead of our individual interests and to work together to position IUP to serve the students who will be coming to us in the years ahead.

John D. Welty
President, IUP

The 'Interim' Is Past: Welty Is President

On July 1, 1985, Dr. John D. Welty officially became the nineteenth man empowered to preside over the institution now known as IUP.

Welty has actually been serving in the president's office in John Sutton Hall for the past year. A former vice-president of student and university affairs, he assumed the post of interim president when Dr. John D. Worthen resigned after a tenure of nearly five years.

Credentials of more than ninety candidates for the presidential post were reviewed by a search committee that comprised representatives of the university's key constituent groups. The committee narrowed the field to Welty and three other men, who were invited to campus for introductions and interviews. Finally, the committee recommended three finalists to the IUP Council of Trustees, which passed the committee's rankings along to the Board of Governors of the State System of Higher Education in Harrisburg.

In mid-April, SSHE Chancellor James H. McCormick '59 announced the selection of Welty as the successful candidate. The new president's closest competition had apparently come from Dr. William C. Merwin, whose search committee ranking was identical to that of Welty. Merwin is provost and vice-president of academic affairs at the University of Northern Florida.

Also recommended by the committee, but with a lower ranking, was Dr. James E. Gilbert, vice-president for academic affairs and a professor of psychology at Pittsburg State University in Kansas.

Welty has worked in state systems of higher education in New York and Minnesota. Before coming to IUP, he was associate dean for student affairs at the State University of New York (SUNY) at Albany. He also served as director of residences and taught in the counseling and personnel services graduate program at SUNY.

Prior to that, he spent a year as assistant vice-president for student affairs and four years as chairman of the division of student development at Southwest State University in Marshall, Minnesota. He also taught interdisciplinary courses as a member of the university's education department faculty.

Dr. Welty's career in education began at Michigan State University, where he worked as an admissions counselor and as assistant director of the New Student Orientation Program. He has a bachelor's degree from Western Illinois University, a master's degree from Michigan State, and a doctorate from Indiana University in Bloomington.

Members of the Presidential Search Committee and their constituent groups were the following: Dr. Charles J. Potter, chairperson (trustee); Miriam K. Bradley '64 (trustee); Walter L. Lewis, Jr. '70 (alumni); Margaret J. Major (student); John B. McCue (trustee); Paula A. McGuire (noninstructional staff); Dr. Donald S. McPherson '69 (faculty); C. Edward Receski '66 (M) (administration); Dr. James C. Wilson (faculty); and Dr. Melvin R. Woodard (faculty). Dr. Potter is also one of the sixteen members of the SSHE Board of Governors.

John and Peggy Welty and their daughters, Beth, left, and Anne have moved into the President's Apartment in John Sutton Hall. Mrs. Welty has masters' degrees in social work management and in counseling. She has worked in Indiana as executive director of Indiana County Group Homes, Inc., and as a social worker in education for the Armstrong-Indiana Intermediate Unit. Anne, a sophomore at Indiana Area Senior High School, plays the clarinet and likes to ride horses. This summer, she's attending New England Music Camp in Maine. A seventh grader at Indiana Junior High School, Beth plays the violin and piano and especially likes basketball, computers, and ballet. She's going to basketball camp and a calligraphy class at IUP this summer and is also learning to play tennis.

GROWTH·RINGS

IUP Honors a Man of Letters from Belsano

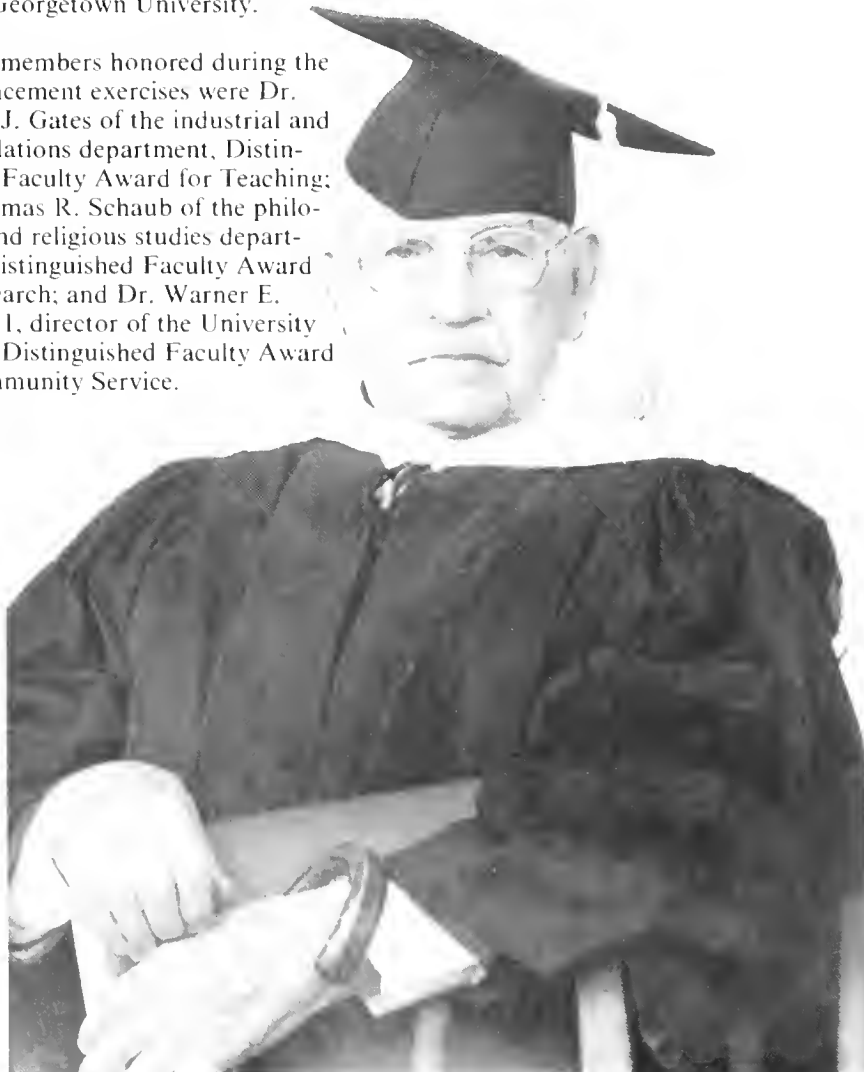

Malcolm Cowley, a distinguished and revered figure on the American literary scene for more than five decades, was the recipient of an honorary doctoral degree at IUP's commencement exercises May 11.

Principal speaker at the exercises was Brig Gen. Hazel W. Johnson-Brown, the first black woman general in the history of the U.S. military. She is currently director, Division of Governmental Affairs, American Nurses Association, in Washington and an assistant professor in the graduate program of nursing administration at Georgetown University.

Faculty members honored during the commencement exercises were Dr. Conrad J. Gates of the industrial and labor relations department, Distinguished Faculty Award for Teaching; Dr. Thomas R. Schaub of the philosophy and religious studies department, Distinguished Faculty Award for Research; and Dr. Warner E. Tobin '51, director of the University School, Distinguished Faculty Award for Community Service.

Born in 1898 in Belsano, Pa., Cowley has been recognized for his contributions as a poet, editor, literary critic, and historian. Among his major works are Black Cargoes, A Many-Windowed House, and, published just this year, The Flower and the Leaf: A Contemporary Record of American Writing Since 1941.

For two decades, Cowley was literary editor of the New Republic. He served two terms as president of the National Institute of Arts and Letters and since 1967 has been literary adviser to Viking Press.

Egyptian Grant Funds Educational Cooperation

Details of a $1.5 million international grant program were ironed out in May when IUP President John D. Welty led a delegation of university presidents to Egypt.

IUP and several other Pennsylvania universities are participants in the effort, which seeks to strengthen basic educational programs in Egypt.

The Supreme Council of Egyptian Universities is providing the grant funds. Implementation arrangements were made through the wintertime visit to the U.S. of the Egyptian Advisory Council and the springtime trip made by Welty and other members of the U.S. Advisory Council.

Scheduled to begin this summer, the cooperative program will develop centers of education in four areas: industrial arts, agriculture, business, and home economics. IUP and the other Pennsylvania universities will provide faculty members and other resources for the centers, which will train Egyptian teachers.

Joining Welty on the week-long trip in May were the presidents of Bloomsburg, Lock Haven, Millersville, Shippensburg, and Slippery Rock universities and a representative of Penn State. IUP's leadership role in the advisory council is an outgrowth of the two-year-old linkage program between the university and Ain Shams University in Cairo.

According to Welty, the grant program "offers an exciting opportunity to use the long-recognized expertise of our faculty in teacher education to assist Egyptian universities. We will benefit tremendously through the understanding of another culture and its educational system."

Cities Are Target of New Recruiting Effort

IUP, in conjunction with the Pittsburgh Public School System, has opened an office in Pittsburgh to aid in the recruitment of minority students. Located at Martin Luther King, Jr., Elementary School on the city's North Side, the office is staffed by the school's assistant principal, Miriam Bradley, and a clerical assistant.

Bradley, a 1964 graduate of IUP and a member of the university's Council of Trustees, volunteers her time to staff the office. In her Pittsburgh recruitment role, she counsels and assists minority students with applications and provides them and their parents with information about IUP. One goal is to reach minority students as early as the ninth or tenth grade so that they can plan a high school program that will prepare them for college.

In Philadelphia, IUP established an academic enrichment program last August. Sessions in reading, writing, mathematics, and speech are conducted at West Philadelphia High School for selected students in grades ten through twelve. The goal is to better prepare the students for the transition to college, and the hope is that many of the more able students will want to choose IUP.

Directed by Crawford W. Johnson, the enrichment program involves student workers, faculty members, and community outreach personnel on a part-time basis.

IUP was the first of the fourteen state-owned universities to target talented blacks for recruitment in 1978 with the Program for Scholars. In 1983, the university exceeded its goal for recruitment of minority freshmen but last year fell somewhat short of its objective.

Among the academic support structures already in place at the university is the Learning Assistance Center, which now includes the programs that had been offered by Educational Development Services. In addition to regular financial aid programs that are available, the SSHE Board of Governors now provides scholarships that IUP is awarding to students who have demonstrated outstanding academic achievement.

Haig Is Selected as Second Series Lecturer

Former U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig, Jr., will speak at IUP September 26. He will be the second participant in the Nell and Sam Jack Distinguished American Lecturer Series.

A former White House chief of staff, Haig, as an Army general, was for four years Supreme Allied Commander in Europe. He has been an implementer as well as a conceptualizer of foreign policy and is the author of a recent book called Caveat—Realism, Reagan, and Foreign Policy, a reflection on his term as secretary of state.

The Distinguished American Lecture Series was established at IUP with a $100,000 grant from Indiana Countians Nell and Sam Jack. Each year, a lecturer is chosen by a committee which recommends and selects speakers. Astronomer Carl Sagan was the 1984 lecturer.

'Significant Increases' Characterize Campaigns

The President's Council and the University Family campaigns are two of the most successful fund-raising efforts sponsored by the Foundation for IUP.

The President's Council, in which each donor annually contributes $1,000 or more, enjoyed significant progress in the 1985 campaign. Membership increased forty-six percent over the previous year; the current council membership is 111.

"More than $85,000 in pledges and gifts was donated through the President's Council during this campaign," according to Indiana attorney Joseph N. Mack, campaign chairperson. "These donations will enhance and enrich programs and scholarships already in existence at the university."

The President's Council was only one of the successes enjoyed by the foundation last year. University Family members, with the help of the Steering Committee and more than forty department volunteer solicitors, proved their support for IUP by posting a twenty-seven percent increase in participation. Donations, in the form of cash, pledges, or payroll deductions, increased to $18,300.

"I am extremely pleased with the President's Council and University Family campaigns this past year," President Welty said. "The significant increases over the previous year indicate an increased confidence in the university and an understanding of the need for private support to advance outstanding programs. We do deeply appreciate those who have participated in these campaigns, and we look forward to increased participation in the future."

Robinson Is Recognized With Medal of Distinction

Col Willard L. Robinson '70 (M) was the recipient in April of the IUP President's Medal of Distinction. He was recognized for his professional achievements, which have attracted national attention to the university's Army ROTC program.

Under Robinson's leadership as chairperson of IUP's military science department, the ROTC program has risen to become one of the top three programs nationwide. Its cadets have consistently ranked in the upper third of their advanced camp, and the Association of the U.S. Army has four times out of the last five years designated the IUP AUSA group as "most active company."

In November, Gov. Richard Thornburgh awarded the Governor's Trophy for Army ROTC Excellence to IUP. The university was thus recognized as having the best Army ROTC program of the twenty-one in Pennsylvania.

A graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, Robinson earned his master's degree at IUP and is currently working on a doctorate of education at the university.

Briefly . . .

"String Quartet No., 2," a composition by IUP music department faculty member Daniel J. Perlongo, was given its world premiere at Carnegie Hall in May. Composed by Perlongo in 1983 and performed by the Pro Arte Quartet, the piece was well-received by the New York audience. Among many honors the composer has earned are a Fulbright grant for study in Italy, the American Prix de Rome, a Guggenheim Fellowship, and an award from the American Institute of Arts and Letters.

IUP student Karen R. Todd, selected as an alternate for the 1985 Harry S. Truman Scholarship, was one of fewer than two hundred individuals - scholars and alternates - to be so honored. The Truman scholarship is awarded on a merit basis each year to college students who show exceptional academic ability and an outstanding potential for leadership in government. It is the official federal memorial to the late president.

Four IUP trustees were reappointed recently by Pennsylvania Gov. Richard Thornburgh. The six-year appointments of Frank Gorell, Samuel W. Jack, Jr., David L. Johnson '53, and John B. McCue were also confirmed by the University Senate.

"A Coat Upon a Stick" by IUP psychology professor Kenneth F. Edgar was chosen from more than two hundred entries as winner of the New American Play contest last spring. Awarded by the Springfield (Mo.) Little Theatre, the honor carries with it a $2,500 cash prize and a two-week-long production of the winning play.

Each year the IUP Office of Career Services expresses gratitude to the company recruiters who regularly come to campus to interview IUP students and, in many cases, offer them jobs. The eleventh annual Recruiter Appreciation Day in April included greetings from President John D. Welty, a presentation by Former President Robert C. Wilburn, and luncheon and golf at the Indiana Country Club. Isabel T. Helmrich of the educational psychology department at IUP was given the faculty associate award. More than a quarter of the "appreciated" recruiters are IUP alumni.

Retired Faculty Spotlight: Dwight E. Sollberger

by S. Trevor Hadley '37

The Retired Faculty Spotlight is on Dwight E. Sollberger.

Dwight joined the faculty at Indiana in 1938, coming directly from Cornell University, where he had earned his Ph.D. in vertebrate zoology. He was a highly respected member of the Indiana faculty for thirty-two years until his retirement in 1970.

Dwight served at Indiana under four presidents: Fausold, King, Uhler, and Pratt. In 1948, Dwight was named chairman of the Department of Biology. When Indiana became a university, he was named coordinator of the natural sciences.

A highlight of Dwight's career at Indiana was the planning, the designing, and the overseeing of the construction of Weyandt Hall, the institution's first specialized science building.

Dwight's retirement has not been characterized by rest and quiet. In 1976, he published a storybook for children, called Fhutertail and Feathertail, which drew heavily on his long years of research on the flying squirrels of Western Pennsylvania.

Dwight is a fitness buff; he has by no means given up such favorite pastimes as bicycling and downhill skiing. Behind his home, on four empty lots, he continues to garden, to cultivate his blueberries, and to experiment with the growing of hemlock trees.

Dwight and his wife, Martha, reside, as they have for many years, at 343 South Thirteenth Street, Indiana, and would be delighted to hear from former students. Many former biology majors fondly remember Sunday evenings spent in the Sollberger home where the chief attraction was Martha's homemade apple pies.

Award Winners Are Lauded

Eight alumni and two seniors were honored during Alumni Weekend on the IUP campus in April.

Dr. Kenneth R. Mechling '60, '64(M) was chosen to receive the Citation for Achievement, and Glenn M. Cannon '71 was the recipient of the Citation for Service. Those receiving Outstanding Alumni awards were Earle F. Holt '47, Merle G. Holt '47, Kenley R. Hoover '57, Richard T. Ingram '63, Sally Stewart '56, '67(M), and Jim D. Wooding '77.

Recipient of the Senior Award for Academic Excellence was John D. LeMaster. Rhonda G. Mateer was presented the Senior Award for Service.

Selections of the alumni award winners were made from nominations submitted by alumni and other members of the IUP community. The 1985 Alumni Awards Committee comprised Robert C. Fairman '70, Mary Park Jack '37, Sharon Turley Kerr '59, Joni L. Solomon '84, Robert O. Warren '49, and Maurice M. Zacur '51.

A similar selection process was used for the senior awards, which are sponsored by the Indiana County Chapter of the IUP Alumni Association. Serving on the senior's selection committee were Anne Doud Miltz '75, Keith M. Tackett '84, and Carolyn T. Violi '76.

Biographies of the alumni and senior award winners appear on the following pages.

Dr. Kenneth R. Mechling '60, '64M is professor of biology and science education and chairperson of the biology department at Clarion University. Since receiving a doctorate in science education from Michigan State University in 1970, he has written and directed more than twenty science education grant programs totaling $20 million and has served as a science consultant to hundreds of school systems throughout the U.S. He has published more than thirty articles in journals and coauthored a series of handbooks on science leadership for the National Science Teachers Association.

Recognized for his service to science education, Dr. Mechling has received numerous awards, including the Pennsylvania Distinguished Teaching Chair, the Phi Delta Kappa Distinguished Scholar Award, the Clarion University Alumni Association Distinguished Faculty Award, the Council for Elementary Science International Outstanding Leadership Award, and a commendation by the National Science Teachers Association. Three times he has received the Meritorious Service Award from the Pennsylvania Science Teachers Association, and he was recently presented the association's Outstanding Leadership in Science Award.

Dr. Mechling is director of two major statewide teacher education programs in Pennsylvania--the Pennsylvania Science Teacher Education Program, aimed at improving science education throughout eighteen universities and twenty-nine of the state's intermediate units, and Information Technology Education for the Commonwealth, designed to improve microcomputer education throughout the state.

Dr. Mechling has served as president of the Pennsylvania Science Teachers Association, as director of teacher education and executive committee member of the National Science Teachers Association, and as president of the Council for Elementary Science International. He and his wife, Dussie, reside in Clarion with their five children: Kenny, Kelly, Amy, Kristine, and Andrew.

Glenn M. Cannon '71 is deputy director of the Department of Public Safety and director of the Department of Emergency Medical Services for the City of Pittsburgh. For the past three years, he has served as the assistant adviser and president of the House Corporation of the Zeta Pi chapter of Delta Tau Delta fraternity at IUP.

Mr. Cannon is president of the Allegheny County Emergency Medical Services Council and is a board member of the Emergency Medical Services Institute of Southwestern Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania Ambulance and Emergency Medical Technicians Association. He belongs to the Fire Safety and Disaster Preparedness Task Force of the Urban Consortium and the International Society of Fire Service Instructors. A member of the Affiliated Residency in Emergency Medicine Advisory Board at the University of Pittsburgh. Mr. Cannon is also a clinical assistant instructor in anesthesiology critical care medicine in the Department of Anesthesiology at Pitt's School of Medicine. He has also served as a faculty member of the EMS program development at the Emergency Training Center. Mr. Cannon received a community services fellowship at Lebanon Valley College and attended Pitt's Graduate School of Public Health.

Mr. Cannon's professional memberships include more than thirty organizations and associations and involve various degrees of participation. He has authored or contributed to numerous articles published in national emergency service journals. He and his wife, Catherine, reside in Pittsburgh with their two sons, Glenn, Jr., and Grant.

Earle F. Holt '47

Earle F. Holt '47 is president of Holt Graphic Arts, Inc., a business he founded thirty years ago in Oakland, California. The company specializes in design, photography, typesetting, and marketing. Mr. Holt has received recognition and awards for this graphic design and photography, which have appeared in national magazines, brochures, and publications. He was awarded first prize at the First International Photographic Show. He recently began his seventh year as president of the Professional Photographers of San Francisco. During his tenure, Mr. Holt has escorted photographers from the U.S. and Canada on Far East photographic tours and seminars. He is past-president of the California College of Arts and Crafts Alumni Association and a former trustee of the college itself, a former member of the Graphic Arts Advisory Board, an affiliate member of the Professional Photographers of America, and a member of the U.S. Marine Corps Combat Correspondence Association and the Sertoma Club.

Mr. Holt received the first master's degree in advertising art that was awarded in the U.S. when California College of Arts and Crafts granted him the degree in 1949. Serving as a commissioned officer in the Marine Corps, he was in the Pacific during World War II and later participated in the Korean Conflict. A graduate of the Naval Law School, Mr. Holt served as trial counsel and defense counsel in San Francisco. In 1965, he retired as a lieutenant colonel; his last assignment was serving as public information officer for eleven western states.

While attending Indiana State Teachers College, Mr. Holt was a member of Delta Phi Delta honorary art fraternity and of Phi Sigma Pi fraternity. He was also on the varsity boxing team and served as baseball manager.

Mr. Holt is married to the former Marianne Dudrear, a 1948 business education graduate of Indiana State Teachers College and a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority. Their son, David, is vice-president of Holt Graphic Arts, and their daughters, Judy and Nancy, are both in the investment profession in San Francisco. The Hols live in Lafayette, California.

Under the direction of Merle G. Holt, Holt Visual Communications in Oakland, California, develops displays and exhibits for industrial and consumer companies and organizations. Mr. Holt received a bachelor of science degree in art education from IUP, then called Indiana State Teachers College, in 1947. As a student, Mr. Holt was a member of Delta Phi Delta honorary fraternity. He was a member of the varsity boxing team and served as baseball manager. In 1950, he received a master of fine arts degree at California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland. Serving in the U.S. Marine Corps Reserves, Mr. Holt was at Okinawa during World War II and again served as a commissioned officer during the Korean Conflict.

Prior to starting his own company in 1971, Mr. Holt was vice-president of Allied Arts and Exhibits in Wilmington, Delaware; a member of the art department of E.I. du Pont de Nemours; and art director of an agency in Oakland. In addition, he served as art supervisor in Pennsylvania's Natrona Heights School District. Mr. Holt is a member of the Walnut Creek (Calif.) Historical Society and holds directorships with two organizations that deal with U.S. cultural relations with Taiwan: the Anita Lee Mixon Studio and the Contra Costa-Taichung Sister County Committee.

Mr. Holt and his wife, the former Lois Olson, reside in Walnut Creek, California. Mrs. Holt was a student in the home economics department at Indiana State Teachers College and a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority. Their daughter, Deborah, is assistant superintendent of diagnostic services for Southern California in Glendale, and their son, Jeffrey, owns a recording studio in Oakland.

Kenley R. Hoover '57

Kenley R. Hoover '57 is vice-president of the American General Life Insurance Company with responsibility for corporate activities in New England and the Mid-Atlantic states. He serves on the board of trustees of BAC-CHUS (Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students). Chairperson of the executive committee of the Boys Scouts of America and a board member of the United Foundation, he served as national president of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity from 1982 to 1984. Mr. Hoover has been listed in Who's Who in the East and Who's Who in Business and Commerce.

While attending IUP, then Indiana State Teachers College, Mr. Hoover was an officer of the Class of 1957 and an officer of Sigma Tau Gamma. A Corrine Menk Wahr Scholarship recipient, he participated in the ROTC Marching Band, the Glee Club, and the staff of the Penn. His military service, which began immediately following graduation, ended with his having attained the rank of captain in the Army Reserves. Prior to undertaking his insurance career, Mr. Hoover was a teacher and basketball coach at Blairsville, Pa., High School.

Beginning as a salesman for Mutual of New York Insurance Company in Indiana in 1959, he eventually progressed to vice-president of the company at its New York City office. A certified life underwriter, Mr. Hoover joined the American General Life Insurance Company in 1977 as vice-president.

Mr. Hoover has two sons. Kevin is an officer of AMP Industries, and Kenley is completing graduate work at the University of Michigan.

Dr. Richard T. Ingram '63 is executive vice-president of the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges in Washington, D.C. He is a trustee of the University of Charleston, an advisory commissioner of the Education Commission of the States, and an advisory board member of the Center for Mediation in Higher Education. Dr. Ingram has been a teacher and lecturer at the University of Virginia, the University of Southern California, and the Washington International Center in the District of Columbia. In addition to volunteer committee membership in various nonprofit organizations, Dr. Ingram has served as a consultant to the former U.S. Office of Education, to public and private colleges and universities, and to organizations outside higher education. Since 1975, he has conducted more than thirty in-service workshops for boards and chief executives of colleges and universities, theological schools, and other national institutions.

A native of Pittsburgh, Dr. Ingram received his master's degree in secondary education from the University of Pittsburgh in 1964 and his doctorate from the University of Maryland in 1969.

Before joining the Association of Governing Boards in 1971, Dr. Ingram held positions in the Department of Student Life at the University of Maryland and served with the U.S. Army as admissions and personnel officer at the U.S. Military Academy Preparatory School. He also served with the Army in Vietnam and taught school.

Dr. Ingram has been an educator, researcher, consultant, and writer in the fields of higher education governance, administration, and planning. He recently edited a Handbook of College and University Trusteeship. Dr. Ingram and his wife, Mollie, reside in Derwood, Maryland, with their two children, Kirsten and David.

Sally Stewart '56, '67M is supervisor of art for the Greater Johnstown School District. She has taught and supervised art in Johnstown for twenty-eight years in addition to her activities as a professional artist. The Greater Johnstown Board of Education honored Ms. Stewart in 1984 for her contributions to the district as a teacher and supervisor and for achievement as an artist.

Ms. Stewart's drawings, paintings, and wood carvings have been displayed in several invitational and exclusive art shows and are included in numerous private collections as well as in business and professional office collections in several states. Her achievements have earned Ms. Stewart numerous awards, the most recent of which include Best of Show for a wood carving in the Women in Visual Arts exhibit at the Johnstown Community Arts Center in 1984 and Highest Achievement for Tempera Painting in 1984 at the Johnstown Genie Art Exhibit. A print of Ms. Stewart's ink drawing created for the Pennsylvania Longrifle Project and authorized by the Pennsylvania Bicentennial Commission hangs in the William Penn Museum in Harrisburg. Ms. Stewart and her art have been featured on television talk shows in Johnstown.

During the past fifteen years, Ms. Stewart has volunteered her time and talent to assist many community projects sponsored by the Johnstown Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis Club, Rotary International, American Legion, American Red Cross, and the Senior Citizens Activity Center of Johnstown.

Jim D. Wooding '77 gained international recognition as a member of the U.S. Decathlon Team when he placed seventh in competition for the "World's Greatest Athlete" at the 1984 Summer Olympic Games in Los Angeles. Ranked as one of the top ten decathletes in the U.S. since 1980, Mr. Wooding achieved a career high total of 8,091 points at the Olympics that included personal bests in the long jump, 400-yard dash, and javelin throw. He has been a member of the U.S. team since 1981 and has competed against decathletes from the Soviet Union and West Germany. In addition, Mr. Wooding placed second in the Pentathlon National Championships in 1981 and 1982.

Following the Olympic Games, Mr. Wooding returned to his alma mater with new responsibilities as assistant director of student activities and Greek affairs. He also assists IUP athletes as assistant track coach. Previously, Mr. Wooding taught high school in the West Chester and Coatesville school districts in eastern Pennsylvania.

Mr. Wooding's achievements in track and field as a student athlete at IUP are without equal. Four times he was named All-American in the decathlon, twice in the high jump, and once in the mile relay. He was the Track and Field Most Valuable Athlete at the 1977 State College Conference Championships and placed fourth in the decathlon competition at the U.S. Sports Festival at Colorado Springs in 1978. Mr. Wooding and his wife, Judith Ann, reside in Indiana.

The winner of the Senior Award for Academic Excellence, John D. LeMaster, had majors in international studies and German with a minor concentration in international business. He served as president of Delta Phi Alpha, the German honorary society, and as a member of the Society of Scholars. Mr. LeMaster served as residence hall vice-president and as teaching assistant for several levels of German instruction. In addition, he directed the German Show broadcast on the campus radio station, WIUP-FM.

Mr. LeMaster came to IUP from the Washington, D.C., area, where he attended the German School. To date, he is the only American to complete the entire academic curriculum of the school. Mr. LeMaster will continue his studies in German. He has been offered two national scholarships to study abroad. Both are sponsored by Delta Phi Alpha, the German honorary society.

Rhonda G. Mateer '85

The winner of the Senior Award for Service, Rhonda G. Mateer, majored in psychology with a minor concentration in biology. As a student at IUP, she was active in a variety of activities in addition to her academic responsibilities. Some of her titles and duties included student-faculty representative of the psychology department, Undergraduate Curriculum Review Committee member for the psychology department, president and vice-president of Psi Chi--the national honor society, Psychology Club president, president of the Tri Halls, and floor representative for the Resident Housing Association.

In addition, her activities included work with the food and housing selection committee and service as a residence hall counselor and administrative assistant, orientation leader, and sophomore career adviser. Ms. Mateer served as a counselor and research assistant for the Educational Development Service, peer counselor for the Educational Opportunity Program, and a volunteer for the Open Door crisis intervention program. She plans to pursue graduate study in clinical psychology.

A Grand Old Name For a Brand-New Union

The S. Trevor Hadley Union Building is open for business. Dedicated during Alumni Weekend in April, the structure is named for a man who has spent nearly all his life working on behalf of IUP, its students, and its alumni.

Dr. Hadley was a freshman at Indiana State Teachers College in 1933, the year the Student Cooperative Association was founded. Later, as an administrator, he played an active role in the building of the first union building, which opened in 1961. That building served as the basis for subsequent expansions, the latest of which is by far the grandest.

The new structure features a huge multipurpose room, a new Co-op Store, lounges, student organization offices, restaurant facilities, and a bank branch. Behind the main building, across West Avenue, where the Co-op store was most recently located, is a racquetball and fitness center.

Construction of the new building, and renovation of the existing ones, began in March, 1984. Designed by the firm of Williams, Trebilcock, and Whitehead, the expansion project ultimately involved nearly forty construction firms. Primary contractor was the Massaro Construction Company.

Students and other Co-op Association members voted on the name for the new union. Beyond his student years, Hadley was a faculty member and administrator at IUP from 1946 to 1978. He was the first and only person to serve as dean of students and later was the first vice-president of student affairs. From 1980 to 1983, he served as president of the IUP Alumni Association. He is also a regular contributor to Oak Leaves.

Hadley's wife, Olive, earned her master's degree at IUP, and several of the Hadley offspring are also alumni.

Mother's Day for Ruth Miles Is a Whole Year Long

by Bridget G. Cipollini '86)

Being a good mother is as easy as pie for Ruth Sawyer Miles '36, winner of the Pennsylvania Mother of the Year award.

That Ruth won the award, bestowed annually by the Pennsylvania Mothers Committee, is understandable. A former home economics major at Indiana State Teachers College, she is the mother of four children, now grown and on their own. She and her husband, Vernal, always stood behind their children in their pursuits, she said. Their children's successes are testimony to the fact that Ruth could very well be one of the best moms around.

As Mother of the Year, Ruth Miles traveled to national competition at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Her down-home philosophy and the time and affection she puts into her associations made her a natural for the recognition she received.

"My husband and I always supported our children in what they were doing," she said. "We'd help them, and we'd encourage them."

Although she's been parenting for forty-four years, the New Cumberland resident never expected to capture the Mother of the Year title. Why? Because mothering is nothing out of the ordinary for Ruth.

"I like to work with children," she said. "I feel a busy child is a good child." Now that her own children are gone from home, she keeps the neighborhood kids busy with activities, providing them with transportation to church events and organizing plays in the gameroom of her home. Her ability to mother beyond her own family was probably one of the factors that led to her nomination for the state honor.

"I guess I'm kind of the mother of the neighborhood, too," she laughed. "That must have been what counted."

As winner of the Pennsylvania title, Ruth qualified for the national competition in New York City, where she described a tradition that binds her family together, a tradition she calls "pie-point power." If one has a pie, Ruth said, and cuts a piece from it, then sets it aside and makes a wish, the wish should come true.

All of Ruth's many "children" must have gotten their wish.

Gymnastics Success Relies on Family Approach

by Kenna Belgie ('87)

Football and men's and women's basketball all enjoyed successful seasons in 1984-85, but the most successful of IUP's four emphasis sports proved to be women's gymnastics. Second-year coach Dan Kendig took his Lady Braves to their second straight Pennsylvania Conference championship and then to their first NCAA Division II Southeast Regional crown. The latter in turn resulted in IUP's first trip as a team to the NCAA National Championship Tournament in Springfield, Massachusetts.

Kendig and close observers of the IUP gymnastics scene detected many factors that led to such success. But perhaps the most important was that the team and program in 1984-85 could aptly be described as "one big, happy family."

The first step in building a family on the order of Kendig's is recruiting the members. "Recruiting changes from year to year, but we first look for specific needs of the team," Kendig said.

He spends his free weekends attending high school and private club meets, taking note of their top performers.

"I can learn more about the gymnasts when they are warming up than I can in the actual meet," Kendig said. "I see how they physically and mentally prepare themselves." Kendig sends a questionnaire asking for skills, interests, academic major preferences, and top gymnastics scores. The gymnasts are requested to send a videotape of one of their performances. "A key to my recruiting is selling the idea that IUP has a top-notch academic program," he said. "I also try to concentrate on our good gymnastic facilities."

The facilities include three full sets of uneven bars, four high beams, three floor beams, and a floor exercise area complete with mirrors. This is all in its own gym, set aside for the exclusive use of the gymnastics program and situated at the former site of the all-purpose Auxiliary Gym at the lower rear of Memorial Field House.

Along with physical wear and tear, athletes experience mental wear and tear, too. That's why Kendig created a host family program this year. Each girl has in Indiana a "second family," which adopts the gymnast for her college career.

Kendig was introduced to the idea at the University of Nebraska, where he was an assistant coach before coming to IUP. He says the primary reason for this program is to give the out-of-town athletes somewhere to go and somewhere to turn.

Most of the girls' real families have met their host families, and, according to Kendig, "There is a real strong bond between the two groups."

He is looking for additional families to expand the program for this fall's incoming freshmen. "There aren't any guidelines in this program," Kendig said. "The families can do what they want to do. It's just like any other relationship that people get involved in."

Some of the relationships on this year's IUP gymnastics team were created several years ago at various summer gymnastics camps. One camp is Woodward (in Pennsylvania's Centre County near State College), where both Kendig and Assistant Coach Karen Polak have been members of the staff for some time.

In addition to their work at Woodward, Kendig and Polak are codirectors of their own two-week IUP camp. Yet another instructional program is led by Kendig and Fran Pugliese Barilar '63. This academy is sponsored throughout the year in the evenings for children and young people. The IUP gymnasts help teach the classes. "The girls learn a lot by teaching those beginners," Kendig says. "It helps them become better gymnasts and better people."

Classic Fund Raiser Is Set for Second Year

Following up on last year's very successful venture, the second annual Lady Braves Golf Classic is set for September at the Indiana Country Club. Christine Toretta and Susan Snell Delaney '64 are chairpersons of the classic, which will again benefit the scholarship fund for all women's sports at IUP.

The event promises a full day of golf with an attractive array of prizes for competitors; last fall, a new car was first prize. The occasion will be capped by an awards dinner.

More than a hundred individuals were involved, and over ten thousand dollars was raised in 1984. The goal is to make the event even bigger this September. If you would like to be part of this fall's golf classic, contact Ruth Podbielski, associate director of athletics for Women's Programs at IUP. Write her at Memorial Field House, IUP, Indiana, PA 15705 or call (412) 357-2755.

'Blue Chips' Choose IUP Over Division I Teams

IUP basketball coaches Tom Beck, Joe Lombardi, and Tony Bernardi got good news last spring, as two blue-chip high school seniors signed letters of intent to enroll with the Braves.

They were Paul Burnett, a six-foot "shooting" guard from Meadville and Marcus Amos, a six-foot point guard from Erie Tech. Both had been considered legitimate Division I aspirants but elected to pursue their academic and athletic careers at IUP.

Predictions are that both could well start as freshmen, since replacements will be needed for four graduating seniors who led IUP to a final mark of 17-10 in 1984-85. The Big Indians reached the Pennsylvania Conference postseason playoffs before bowing to California, the eventual champion, by two points in the final seconds.

ALUMNI·LEAF·LINES

Of Interest to Alumni

The search for a director of alumni affairs has been postponed, pending an administrative reassignment of the Office of Alumni Affairs. Richard T. Wolfe '64 will continue to serve as interim director during this postponement. Additional information about the position, which was held until March by Jonell Hoenstine '68, will appear in a later issue of Oak Leaves.

In the Chapters

Central Ohio - Members of the IUP Central Ohio Chapter gathered for a picnic on Sunday, June 9, at the home of J. Evan and Evelyn Colabine Williams '40. Happy hour was held June 7 at the Court of Small Clams. Happy Hour was cancelled for July 5 because of the holiday weekend. August 2 happy hour information will be announced at a later date. A chapter business meeting is tentatively scheduled for August. Additional information may be obtained by calling Pat Sheridan '80 at (614) 764-4926 or Dick Armanini '60 at (614) 431-1775.

Dallas/Ft. Worth - A Dallas, Ft. Worth Chapter is being organized. Michael Warriner '79 invites interested alumni and friends to contact him at 809 Monique Center, Cedar Hill, TX 75104 (telephone (214) 291-3537).

Florida - The Florida Chapter had its Second Annual IUP Alumni Reunion Dinner at Plant City Holiday Inn. IUP President John Welty, Tony Lenzi '54, executive director of the Foundation for IUP, and Mary Helen Turner Smail '66, Alumni Association president, attended the event. Nick Sudzina '69 was elected chairperson for the 1986 dinner. If anyone is interested in getting involved and assisting Nick, please call him at (813) 644-1469.

Harrisburg - The Harrisburg Chapter gathered at Cumberland Valley High School on April 25 for a roast beef dinner and entertainment by the IUP Wind Ensemble. Warner Tobin '51, IUP Harrisburg Chapter liaison, and Paula McGuire, Alumni Office administrative assistant and chapter coordinator, traveled to Mechanicsburg to meet with the chapter members. Harrisburg Chapter alumni provided overnight lodging for Wind Ensemble members. In addition to chapter President Karen Kelly Deklinski '79 and other officers and members, former IUP faculty members residing in the area joined in the event.

Hoosier - Bob Marchesani '83 has begun a Hoosier Alumni Chapter in the state of Indiana. An organizational meeting was held May 11. Recent graduates who may not have been contacted are invited to call Bob at (317) 872-1112 or (317) 872-9744.

Houston - The Houston Chapter is still seeking energetic alumni willing to help plan events for the large group. For members of the Class of 1985, this is a good way to make contacts with alumni in the area. Interested alumni are invited to call Ed Rammrath '79 at (713) 783-6344 or (713) 530-3964.

Indiana County - The members of the Indiana County Chapter celebrated Valentine's Day in the Blue Room of John Sutton Hall. Ed Bucha, assistant director of alumni affairs, and Paula McGuire, administrative assistant in the Alumni Office, attended the event along with ninety-four IUP alumni. Jim Laughlin '51, chapter president, arranged the ice cream party, and Dan DiCicco '54 of the music department arranged for entertainment by three IUP student music groups. Dr. Barbara Balsiger '50 hosted the museum show. A summer barbecue at the University Lodge will be the next event; area alumni will receive information.

Jeannette - The Jeannette Chapter held its spring meeting and continues to plan activities. The chapter made a contribution to the Breezedale restoration effort; Breezedale is slated to serve someday as a campus alumni center.

Los Angeles - The Los Angeles Chapter contact person, Jack Levic '79, is looking for people to help plan events for the chapter. New graduates are invited and encouraged to get involved. Those interested in helping Jack should call him at (213) 874-2570.

Pittsburgh - The Pittsburgh Alumni Chapter gathered for a meeting at Durante's in Oakland on April 13. Ed Bucha, assistant director of alumni affairs, attended the event, and Bob McClay, chairperson of the IUP safety sciences department, spoke to the group. Greg Palchak '73, an IUP safety sciences graduate, also addressed the approximately twenty-five alumni on hand. Greg is director of environmental affairs for PPG Industries in Pittsburgh. The Pittsburgh area alumni made plans to donate a bench to IUP. New officers elected include: president, Mary Jane Miller Tuttle '47; vice-president, Joe Lucchino '75; secretary, Pat Dible Thompson '49; and treasurer, Shirley Engelhardt Tranquill '53. An August 15 picnic is being arranged for students in the Pittsburgh area who will be entering IUP in the fall as freshmen.

Southeastern Pennsylvania - David Siesko '83 has started a Southeastern Pennsylvania IUP Alumni Chapter. The group held its first organizational meeting in May.

Tarentum - The Tarentum Alumni Chapter met on April 20 at the Friendship Garden Restaurant in Springdale. One of IUP's original alumni chapters, it has continued to be active through the years. Future events are being planned.

Washington, D.C. - The March 2 potluck dinner at the home of Mary Helen Turner Smail '66 was attended by President and Mrs. John Welty; Ed Bucha, assistant director of alumni affairs; and thirty alumni and friends. The annual meeting was held March 30 at the home of Dennis and Lisa Bare. The evening began with a wine-and-cheese party. The following officers were elected at this meeting:

president, Dennis Bare '79; vice-president, Barbara Neckrich '79; recording secretary, Lisa Miller Bare '82; corresponding secretary, Bonnie Curry Brose '67; treasurer, Kathy Tobin '79; and members at large, Tom Wileher '78, Mary Helen Smail, and Scott Robbins '80. A summer picnic pool party was held at the Smail home. Area alumni will receive information about the IUP-Towson State football game and about tailgating.

IUP is reaching out to all areas in Pennsylvania and the other forty-nine states. If you are interested in organizing an alumni chapter in your area, and you have a network of people willing to get involved again with IUP, please contact the Alumni Office. We are anxious to help you get started.

There's No Place Like Homecoming

Homecoming, 1985, promises the tradition of kings and queens, carnivals, bands, balloons, contests, and parties to welcome alumni back to the IUP campus Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, October 18, 19, and 20.

The Homecoming Carnival will feature "Big Top" tents with a variety of family entertainment, specialty foods, refreshments, games, and activities. Friday evening, the Best Western University Inn will be the site for a reunion buffet dinner-dance for graduates of the classes of 1960 through 1965. In addition, IUP alumni and families and friends are invited to the Holiday Inn for music and refreshments at a special Homecoming Reception.

Well-known fairy tales will be highlighted at the Homecoming Parade on Saturday. And the IUP Alumni Association will host its "First Annual Tailgate Party" near Miller Stadium prior to the kickoff of the IUP-Clarion football game.

The Eddie Arnell Orchestra will provide the entertainment during the Alumni Dinner-Dance Saturday evening at the Indiana Country Club.

Alumni who still have energy to burn on Sunday can join the hundreds of runners expected to participate in the 10K Race at noon sponsored by the IUP Alumni Association and ARA Services.

Additional events will be announced as plans are completed.

A Homecoming, 1985, brochure containing a complete schedule of events and activities with reservation information will be mailed to IUP alumni and friends in July. Special requests or additional information requests should be directed to the IUP Office of Alumni Affairs, 303 John Sutton Hall, Indiana, PA 15705-1086.

LOSING YOU IS SAD (AND EXPENSIVE)

The Alumni Office wants to keep in touch to let you know about activities and to send you the alumni magazine. This can only be done if you keep in touch with us.

When you move, notifying us of your new address means a substantial saving to the alumni program. These dollars, in turn, can be used for funding more special events and publications.
